NZ'S LOCAL INSURANCE BROKERS

Claims Examples

A business owner has a walk in chiller in their florist shop. They arrive at the premises one day to find that the chiller has had a mechanical breakdown overnight and the stock of flowers is now no longer suitable for sale. The estimate/cost to repair the mechanical breakdown is $5,900. Through the FloristPac scheme offering, Machinery Breakdown is automatically included as an extension with a limit, for any one event, of $10,000; at no extra cost this can be covered. Most of our competitor's policies offer Machinery Breakdown as an optional extension only and usually charge an additional premium for this.

A business owner goes to close up their store at the end of the day and discovers that a recently purchased stereo system (used for background music), valued at $3,500, had been stolen during business hours. It was not in use at the time and was stored at the back of the retail shop. Because they were insured through the FloristPac scheme the Theft excess is $1,000 which means they would receive a payout of $2,500. Most of our competitor's policies would have a $2,500 excess leaving them with a payout of only $1,000.
